

Artifact Spotlight

Actor and musician, David Bruce Cassidy, is probably best known for his television portrayal of Keith Partridge in the popular 1970s sitcom, The Partridge Family. The success of the show led to him becoming one of the most popular singers and teen idols of the 70s. Cassidy charted seven singles as the singer for the fictional band, "The Partridge Family, with "I Think I Love You," being the bestselling single of 1971.

He charted an additional twelve singles as a solo artist. In February 2017, Cassidy announced that he was suffering from the early stages of dementia. The songbook shown here is one of the many music artifacts of various artists housed in the museum collection.